From the Principal

I humbly ask our Palma Family to make time during these 40 days of the Lenten season to rededicate resolve, resilience, and renewed vigor to doing the most ordinary things in the most extraordinary ways.

Dear People of Palma,

Lent is here. Lent is the season of repentance, change and rededication to the spiritual life for each of us individually and collectively as a Church. We take these 40 days of Lent to venture into our own metaphorical “deserts,” where we discipline ourselves in an effort to rearrange our priorities. By our renewed commitment to prayer, fasting and almsgiving (acts of charity), we reestablish God as #1. This is the process of metanoia, the Greek word of the gospels, meaning a total and spiritual conversion or awakening — a fundamental and repentant change of character.

May I suggest that in the spirit of Lent season, we share our appreciation for community here at Palma? The concept of community is central to a thriving school environment built on high levels of respect, trust and support. We cannot be who we profess to be, and our students cannot continue to grow in confidence and healthy reflections of self-worth without a legitimate sense of community here. Our young men make conscious efforts to appreciate and support one another every day — I am often inspired by them.

Community among the faculty, staff and administration at Palma is wonderfully palpable! We greet one another, pray together, and laugh together. We cover classes for one another in their absences. We assist one another. Despite the many directions our lives can take us we generally bring the right attitudes with us to meetings, workshops, in-services, and more. In general, our teachers enjoy being here. We find support, fellowship and family here in the working environment. This is the “x-factor” for foundations of success in a school with potential for extraordinary achievement.

Teachers who enjoy teaching cultivate students who enjoy learning. We are not perfect, but we are a community. We support one another, confide in one another, and we collaborate to be the very best we can to help your son. Yes, we make mistakes. Yes, we know that we are held to a higher standard in our profession than most other working adults — especially because we are working with your son. But, we love one another. And, we love your son. And love is the “stuff” of a successful community. Let us keep one another in love and prayer as we work to strengthen our community!

I humbly ask our Palma Family to make time during these 40 days of the Lenten season to rededicate resolve, resilience, and renewed vigor to doing the most ordinary things in the most extraordinary ways. I am grateful for our students and their families, for our teachers, coaches, and staff, and for the family of families that make Palma the special place that it is. Go Chieftains!

Yours in Blessed Edmund Rice,

Mr. David J. Sullivan
Principal

CSF stands for the California Scholarship Federation, whose mission is to recognize and encourage academic achievement and community service among high school students in California. There are approximately 1500 chapters throughout the state, and each chapter is composed of students who meet CSF eligibility requirements. Eligible students become members by submitting applications based on their report card grades. Membership is for one semester, and membership drives are held twice each year within established periods dictated by CSF bylaws.

The list below includes high school students who not only had fall 2022 semester grades and behavior records that qualified them to apply for membership but who also met the mandatory deadline for submitting an application. Students must reapply each semester they are eligible; the next application period will be in September based on the current semester's grades.

Students can earn Life Membership by earning membership during four semesters in grades 10 through 12, one of which must be based on grades earned during senior year. CSF Life Members receive special recognition at the Palma High School graduation ceremony in May and wear CSF Life Member cords along with their caps and gowns. Life Members also have official gold seals affixed to their diplomas. In March, notification will be sent to seniors who have qualified for Life Membership or who may qualify by earning excellent grades in their spring 2023 courses. If you have any questions regarding CSF, please contact Mr. Viarengo.

Ready for a college road trip?

We'll consider visiting colleges during Easter break or this summer. If you're just beginning the college search process, start your visits close to home. Even if you don't plan on attending a local college, visits to nearby institutions will allow you to more carefully focus on such factors as size, diversity of student body, type of institution, majors and courses of study. Visit both public and private colleges, residential and commuter campuses, universities and liberal arts colleges. Once you've determined the characteristics most important to you, you can begin visiting colleges that are further away. Seniors who have begun receiving admissions decisions may want to pay a second (or third) visit to each campus they are seriously considering. This is the time to go beyond the group tour. If possible, arrange an overnight visit with a stay in the dorms. Attend classes and talk with current students about what they like and don't like. Eat at the dining hall, and check out the library. Picture yourself attending that school, and determine where on your list of acceptances that college falls.

College blogs provide an insider's view

In an attempt to forge a greater connection with prospective applicants, admission offices across the U.S. are recruiting current students to write blogs about their college experience. Although these officially sanctioned (but uncensored) blogs can sound a bit like a promotional tool, they often do provide a real insider's view of life at that institution. Happily, bloggers are likely to tell you about the good and the bad. Ideally, the reader will come away with an idea of what makes that college unique and interesting. Blogs put a very human face on the institutional facade. At some schools these students receive a small stipend, while at others they are volunteers. But are they really helpful? At MIT, the admissions website gets 15,000 page views a day. A recent MIT survey of admitted students revealed that blogs were among the three most useful things in helping students to decide to attend.

Southern California college trip

The Palma Guidance Department had another successful College Trip to ten different Universities. Forty-one students and three chaperones began their journey at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo and ended at UC San Diego. We visited two CSU's, three UC's and five private universities. Several of our tours were led by Palma alumni. Most of our guides attended the college trip themselves when they were sophomores and juniors at Palma. This trip truly reinforces that our alumni are Chieftains for Life and that the Palma brotherhood is alive and strong. I'd like to thank the following Palma alumni for giving us tours this year: Cal Poly San Luis Obispo: Jack Busch '20, Jakob Reinhardt '20, Noah Andersen '22, and Vince Nino '22. UCLA: Kevin Espinas '22, Aryan Nahal '22 and Ryan Roggio '22. Loyola Marymount: Ben Wood '20. USD: Sam Gomez '22 and Shane Olszanowski '21. UCSD: Simon Bosch '20. I would especially like to thank our chaperones: Mr. Giammanco, Ms. Magana and Mrs. Short
